MARMORA, One of the Greatest

MRS. S. A. ERREY, Another Great Australian Novelty

Our Fifth Catalog

The growing season of 1930 was one of the best ever experienced in the Pacific Northwest. As most of our readers know the growers do not depend on the skies for water but use irrigation. We were favored with an especially favorable early season, giving the bulbs and bulblets an especially good start. As is usual in this valley, we had good weather for planting and harvesting.

First of all, we wish to thank our old customers. They are the backbone of any business and it is indeed gratifying to find some of them coming back year after year, sometimes sending in several orders a season. And we appreciate complaints too. Anyone is bound to have a few each year and we appreciate a chance to make things right. As is the usual trade custom, we cannot guarantee what bulbs will do under every condition, we can't promise that bulblets will sprout or what you will get in the way of blooms. We do promise however to use every reasonable means to satisfy you. And quite often we go a long way to make a customer happy.

We believe our stock is exceptionally free of rogues. In the first place we always buy planting stock of growers whom we have every reason to believe reliable. We are very careful to rogue everything that appears out of place in the garden. Stock was so clean last season, however, that we doubt if we found a dozen strays in the whole patch. In cleaning we use all precautions to avoid any mixture and never turn the job over to untrained help.

We use preventative measures to avoid disease infection. In spite of using new ground continually, we believe this is necessary for every commercial grower. We also believe in use of fertilizer to a limited extent as a vigorous bulb like a healthy human can resist disease or unfavorable conditions better. Overfed bulbs however are not desirable.

We are very proud to be able to offer so many of the new varieties, including two new introductions of our own. We do not buy new ones indiscriminately and, while we cannot recommend all we list without reservations, we believe that we handle most of the worth-while ones and that all these kinds are worth growing.

We do not substitute one variety for another without permission but, if one size is exhausted, supply next size.

Our business for the 1929-30 season was almost three times as great as the previous one and although financial depression is reducing the size of some orders at present, we believe this season is proving as good as last up to the present time. As the old poet chose a flower in preference to a loaf of bread, so the real lover of glads is willing to stint himself of other things to enjoy his favorite flower. And we are going to try to reward this spirit by being as liberal as we can afford to be.

At the start of this New Year, we wish your 1931 garden to be the delight of your heart.

THE BLAKES (Paul and Hamilton).

Two New Varieties

We are offering this season, for the first time, two new glads that we believe are really worth while and at a price that is not out of reason.

First is Wings of the Morning, a very lovely pink Phipps seedling. We discovered this variety at the show of the Oregon Gladiolus Society last summer. It was originated by Mrs. O. H. Miller, of Washougal, Oregon. We had the pleasure of visiting Mrs. Miller's garden, overlooking one of the most scenic spots in the Columbia river gorge, and had the opportunity of seeing how Wings of the Morning performed under natural conditions. This variety won A. G. S. medal at the Oregon show in 1926 and with other seedlings of Mrs. Miller's repeated by winning medal the past year. Color description: eosine pink shading to begonia rose and to white in throat; small blotch of rose doree in throat. Large size, up to six inches. Up to 18 buds, all showing color. Straight spike, good placement, fine substance. Opens two or three at a time and will stand in field without fading until nine or ten are out at once. Blooms very early. See list for prices.

Our second offering, Blue Moon, is a seedling of our own. We have such a small amount left that we can only allow three bulbs to any customer. In addition to color, its outstanding feature is earliness, always being the first to bloom, sometimes a week ahead of all others. It has size, up to five-inch diameter. Color: mauve to Chinese violet or hyssop violet; Rood's violet in center. Good propagator. Height about 36 inches. Fifteen to twenty florets with several out at a time. We have grown it for five years and want to share this pleasure with you; but remember quantity is very limited. Prices in list following.

No bulblets of either of these varieties will be sold this season.

We have limited quantities of two other very fine seedlings that we expect to bring out next year. We wish to try these out this season and, if they are as good as we think, you will have a chance next time.

We also want you to know that we have several new importations from Europe and Australia that cannot be offered until next year because of importation restrictions. Glad growing has become such a cosmopolitan affair that the real fancier is not satisfied with having only the varieties produced in our country but must have some of the new ones from Germany, Holland, Australia, Scotland, New Zealand, England and France. To try to list all these is a waste of our money and yours. But there are some outstanding ones each year and we endeavor to locate them.

Here Are the Listings

Following this heading are about two hundred varieties that we have selected as very worth while. They represent a collection displaying almost every color of the rainbow and range in price from those that the poorest gardener can afford to the best that the fancier desires. Immediately following the descriptions, comes the price list of all sizes we have in stock. While of most varieties we have quite a quantity, of others the stocks will not last through a month of selling.

As you notice, we offer bulblets of most all kinds. We do this without any recommendation as to their purchase by amateurs. Some of them will grow very easily while those of others will require lots of attention to get any great per cent to germinate.

During the past season, we received many letters commending us on the quality of our bulbs, liberal count and general good treatment. We thank these friends for their kind words. In fact we would have liked to publish a few of these letters in this catalog but decided that we would rather have you find out how good our bulbs are by trying them, than to give you the opinions of others.

We now invite your attention to a list of varieties that with proper care will make your garden a thing of beauty. We hope you take time to read it over carefully.

Gladiolus Seed

While we have not gone about it as scientifically as some growers, we each season save a quantity of seed for our own use. It is not our habit to let any great quantity of our plants go to seed, but we select a few of the best for artificial crossing or self-pollination. We believe this seed to be about fifty per cent hand-crossed and there are very few seed of prim hybrids, which seed so easily. This is the seed we use for our own planting and, as you can tell from our list of varieties, comes from the pick of the world's great ones.

All seed is of the same grade but we have a limited quantity saved over from the 1929 season, the extra year of curing increasing germinating qualities. Prices as follows: 1929 seed, $1 per 100, $7 per 1000; 1930 seed, $1 per 200, $4 per 1000.

Try some of this seed. We can't guarantee any results but the chances are good for your getting some fine flowers and it's a lot of fun to experiment with them.
